

Annmarie Giblin Explains How Treating Data as Property Could Open the Door to Novel Data Litigation Claims

In The News | less than 1 min read

May 12, 2022

In a recent byline published by The New York Law Journal, Hinshaw partner Annmarie Giblin discusses how a California federal court decision has significantly expanded on a growing trend across courts to recognize the lost property value of data. By affirmatively holding that people have a “property interest in their personal information,” the decision in Calhoun v. Google could herald the approach of a long-anticipated data litigation train.

Read the full article (PDF)

“How Treating Data as Property Could Open the Door to More Novel Data Litigation Claims” was published by The New York Law Journal on May 9, 2022.

---

Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP is a U.S.-based law firm with offices nationwide. The firm’s national reputation spans the insurance industry, the financial services sector, professional services, and other highly regulated industries. Hinshaw provides holistic legal solutions—from litigation and dispute resolution, and business advisory and transactional services, to regulatory compliance—for clients of all sizes. Visit www.hinshawlaw.com for more information and follow @Hinshaw on LinkedIn and X.

Related Capabilities

Data Privacy, AI & Cybersecurity

Related Locations

New York