Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP is proud to announce that partner Ben Raindorf was among a group of honorees selected as a Mentor in the 2022 New Jersey Law Journal Legal Awards. Each year, the New Jersey Law Journal recognizes attorneys who are “making an indelible mark” on the New Jersey legal community and beyond through their “dedication to the profession.”

Honorees will be recognized at a Gala on September 29, 2022.

In a Q&A profile, captioned by the New Jersey Law Journal as “Ben Raindorf Points Out That Clients Can Be Mentors, Too,” Ben explains his approach to mentorship.

“Ben is a gifted mentor and leader, sought out regularly by our young attorneys for his advice on legal matters and career guidance,” said Ellen Silverman, co-partner-in-charge of the New Jersey office. “He is known for his open-door policy and approachability. He also leads by example, providing associates daily opportunities to experience the ins and outs of managing a successful and demanding law practice. We are thrilled that New Jersey Law Journal has recognized his dedication to mentoring.”

A member of Hinshaw’s Consumer Financial Services Practice Group, Ben represents leading national financial services providers in complex litigation. In addition to his active trial and appellate practice, he defends clients before state and federal regulators across the country against a wide range of claims, including predatory lending, misappropriation, and RESPA claims.

Widely regarded as a thoughtful and dedicated mentor, Ben has guided numerous attorneys on the path to partnership and provides networking and professional development opportunities, assisting with business development and learning from experience.

“Ben is adept at coming up with creative solutions, which are drawn from his deep understanding and knowledge of the consumer financial industry sector,” Hinshaw associate Bryan Christenson said. “I’ve learned from his example that providing creative and effective solutions is what sets you apart from other attorneys in your areas of practice.”
