About Al

Al concentrates on tort defense, managing mediations, arbitrations, and litigation in state and federal court. His work encompasses transportation, product liability, toxic tort, chemical exposure, fire litigation, construction defects, and general liability matters.

As national co-chair of Hinshaw's defense litigation practice group, Al developed and oversees the firm's rideshare and micro-mobility defense programs for a 50-state app-based enterprise. He also leads a premier defense team for one of the firm's largest self-insured clients, securing strategic resolutions in high-stakes transportation, auto-collision, and micro-mobility claims.

Al pioneers novel defense strategies for alternative dispute resolution, developing internal and legal protocols, motion practice, and innovative investigation techniques. For instance, he designed a social media evidence-gathering tool to capture critical information about witnesses and parties.

In addition to litigation, Al handles estate planning and asset protection, including wills, trusts, series LLCs, and family limited partnerships. He has also built a highly skilled niche practice in trust and estate litigation.

While clerking, Al played a key role in litigation related to a fire at the Cook County Administration Building in Chicago, which resulted in six fatalities and 16 people being injured.
