About Nick

Nick represents financial institutions and businesses in complex litigation, with a focus on consumer financial services litigation, regulatory disputes, and high-stakes matters involving significant legal and financial risk. He helps clients navigate challenges that can affect their operations, reputation, and bottom line, developing practical strategies tailored to their objectives.

As a former federal law clerk, Nick approaches each matter with a strong understanding of litigation strategy and judicial decision-making. He works closely with clients to achieve efficient, effective solutions that support their long-term goals.

Areas of Focus

Industries: Consumer Financial Services; Financial Services

Services: Financial Services Litigation

Experience

- Preserved client's ownership rights in a foreclosure property on appeal, enabling resale and protecting the investment's full value while avoiding further litigation risk.
- Obtained a temporary restraining order enforcing a non-compete agreement for a financial institution, safeguarding business interests during a critical transition and preventing competitive harm.

- Secured confirmation of an arbitration award exceeding $600,000, plus interest, after removing a motion to vacate in federal court. The result preserved the client's favorable arbitration outcome and efficient enforcement of a significant monetary recovery.
- Eliminated multi-million-dollar contractual exposure by second-chairing a successful trial that resulted in cancellation of a high-value contract in a complex commercial dispute.
