Do you have employees in the state of California? You probably already know that managing employment issues in our fair state can prove to be very challenging, given that California’s labor and employment laws are considerably different from federal and other state laws.

Hinshaw’s Labor and Employment Group is pleased to offer this complimentary breakfast briefing to discuss various employment issues facing employers, such as leave and disability claims, wage and hour disputes, and responding to/investigating complaints or claims. The briefing is open to business owners, members of general counsel’s offices, executive leaders, HR directors, and HR managers.
