Chicago-based attorneys Vaishali Rao and Sarah King will present in a Lawline virtual event titled “The Supreme Court’s Decision on Student Loan Forgiveness and The State of Student Loans in the Aftermath.” The pair will consider the state of student loans, including a comprehensive analysis of the Supreme Court’s rulings in Biden v. Nebraska and Dept. of Education v. Brown. Practitioners will gain insights into the Court’s decision-making process, including its impact on student loan repayment programs. Additionally, they will receive practical tips for handling student loans and preparing for potential challenges.

Takeaways:

- I. Historical overview of federal student loan lending and servicing and the related impact of COVID-19
- II. Analysis of Biden v. Nebraska and Department of Education v. Brown
- III. The implications of the Court’s holding and rationale on other cases
- IV. Updates on major initiatives from the Biden administration after the decision and potential challenges
- V. Identified practical tips for student loan borrowers and student loan industry participants
