About Stephanie

With nearly two decades of experience, Stephanie represents professionals, such as architects, engineers, contractors, attorneys, insurance brokers, and school districts, in litigation and transactional matters. She primarily handles cases arising from the design and construction process and has worked on a broad range of civil litigation, including construction law, products liability, general property and casualty, and insurance coverage claims.

Additionally, Stephanie has experience in medical malpractice, premises liability, personal injury, and defending investment firms and brokers in securities litigation and coverage disputes. Armed with experience and knowledge that includes managing cases with multimillion-dollar exposure, Stephanie works with industry professionals to provide them with solutions tailored to their unique business needs and goals.

She has a proven track record of successfully and efficiently resolving cases through dispositive motions, negotiation, alternative dispute resolution, and trial. Actively involved in all stages of litigation, she remains accessible to her clients throughout the process.
