About Drew

In his diverse practice, Drew represents clients in commercial disputes, professional negligence, personal injury, and product liability cases, from pre-trial through appeals. He is frequently appointed as panel counsel in complex matters and represents companies of all sizes, as well as design and construction professionals, directors and officers, and real estate agents and brokers. Drew also handles cases related to the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA). He focuses on the big picture and develops aggressive, creative strategies to help clients resolve complex litigation.

Experience

- Hinshaw defended an insurer in an unorthodox negligence and breach of contract action brought by a former employee of an avionics manufacturer who sought to recover damages for personal injuries he sustained in a motor vehicle accident with an underinsured truck driver. The team's motion to dismiss with prejudice was granted, saving the insured from six-figure exposure and an expensive insurance coverage dispute.
