

Wendy Chang Quoted in Article Discussing What Malpractice Attorneys Should Never Tell Clients

In The News | 1 min read

Jun 7, 2016

Wendy Chang, a Los Angeles-based partner in the Lawyers for the Profession[®] group at Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP, was quoted in the article “3 Things Legal Malpractice Attys Should Never Tell Clients” published by Law360 on June 7, 2016.

The article identifies three phrases that a legal malpractice attorney should never tell their client to avoid compromising an otherwise-healthy attorney-client relationship. One phrase mentioned is “I can’t talk right now” for which Ms. Chang emphasizes the importance of communication stating “[m]ost lawyers have a lot on their plate and are forced to juggle a multitude of matters. But delaying communication with a client facing a legal malpractice suit is a quick way to make a difficult time even harder for them.”

Read the full article “3 Things Legal Malpractice Attys Should Never Tell Clients” on the Law360 website. Please note a subscription is required.

Wendy Chang represents lawyers in all types of complex matters that involve the practice of the law, including risk management counseling, ethics, crises management, fee-related issues, discipline defense, hotline counseling, and litigation defense. Ms. Chang is a member of the American Bar Association’s Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility.

Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP is a U.S.-based law firm with offices nationwide. The firm’s national reputation spans the insurance industry, the financial services sector, professional services, and other highly regulated industries. Hinshaw provides holistic legal solutions—from litigation and dispute resolution, and business advisory and transactional services, to regulatory compliance—for clients of all sizes. Visit www.hinshawlaw.com for more information and follow @Hinshaw on LinkedIn and X.